Scholarships and Financial Support

Undergraduate Financial Support

Undergraduates can find a number of financial aid opportunities through the University of Washington's Office of Student Financial Aid. The Office of Merit Scholarships, Fellowships and Awards also provides valuable information on the scholarship search and application process.

Graduate Financial Support

There are a few fellowships for first-year students, given as recruitment awards. In addition, most students who complete the Ph.D. program receive at least a few quarters of support from fellowships or research assistantships without teaching duties.

Visit our Funding UW Mathematics Graduate School section for more info on costs and financial aid related to our programs.

Additionally, the UW Student Guide is a great resource for information on many issues, including finances and financial aid and student life, health care, and counseling.
